Reflections

On The Lake

Members of Kiwanis have taken the bull by the horns, put the horse behind the cart and erect the La Mesa railroad station on Laurel street. Who will be stationmaster and how passengers will arrive at La Mesa, and by what route is a matter of great speculation. Lakeside saw its greatest glory the day that the railroad was completed to Foster and a spur line circled the present lake. Three trains of excursionists pulled onto the spur, inaugurating the new line. The original Lakeside station still stands, however, nature on a rampage carried away the railroad track. Unless members of Kiwanis have recovered enough track to reach La Mesa or they could have monorail in mind, then, too, a museum could be a possibility—sort of a last laugh on table town.

Lakeside will never suffer cork famine now that one and all will be growing cork trees—courtesy of Mrs. Florence Beadle. If someone will supply bottle tree shoots, a great service will have been established.

Cool shaves and scalping is now the order at the Willis barber shop, with the installation of a new air conditioner. . . . Mrs Harvey Huffman is under a doctor's care at her mother's home in La Mesa.

Once again local winers in the men's , and women's singles doubles and mixed doubles will qualify for the Southern California Publi Parks playoffs in Santa Monica starting July 21. Singles winners are sent to the National Public Parks meet in Cincinnati August 19-26.

All sectors of the County are expected to be well represented in the local netfest. El Cajon's Carl Eltzholtz is two-time defending single titlist, while la Mesa's Nancy Armour and Coronado's Georgia Bunker are strong threats in women's events. Other standouts are Bob Galloway, San Diego; Ken Gemundt, National City; Stanley Cress, Oceanside and Helen Hernandez, La Jola.

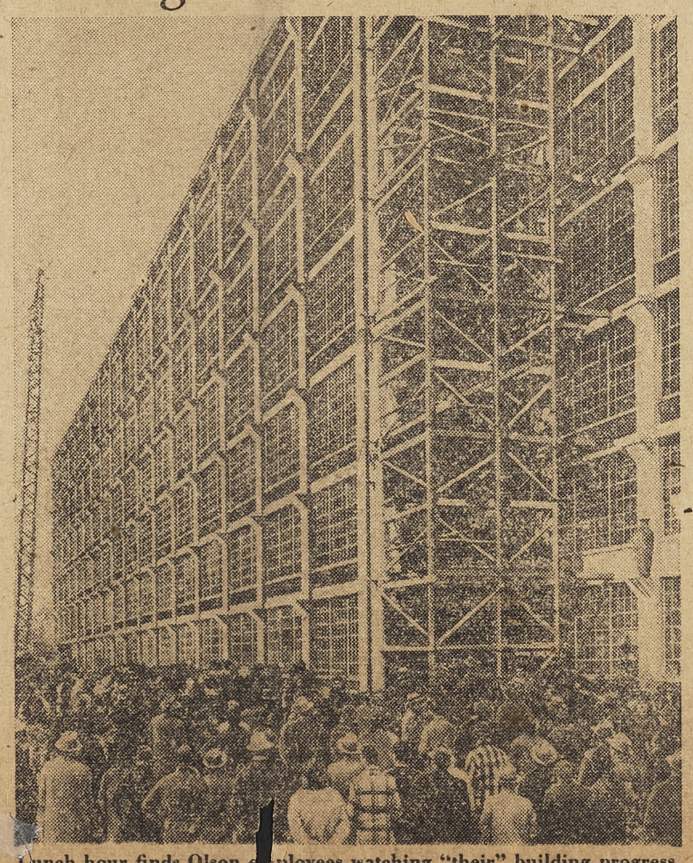
Swimmers Meet For Coast Title

A 20-event invitational swimming championships will be held in San Diego June 10 at municipal swimming pool near City Dump underauspices of the citp park recreation department. The event held in former years under outside sponsorship, is sponsored this year by the department's San Diego Swimming Association under direction of the Southwest Pacific Border Association, A.A.U.

Entry is open to all registered A.A.U. athletes and a large turnout of men and women acquatic aces is expected from the Los Angeles area. There are also events for boys and girls in 10 and under; 11 and 12 years; and 13-14 years.

Deadline for entries in the invitational meet is June 6 at the city acquatic offices, 3802 Bayside Walk, San Diego 8. Gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded in each event. There will also be awards for individual high points for men and women and team trophies in both divisions.

Walter E. Olson "Saving Plan" For Rug Workers Wins Praise



Lunch hour finds Olson employees watching "their" building progress.

CHICAGO — Employees of the Olson Rug Co. have invested over $700,000 of their own money at a guaranteed 6% interest in the huge new 6-story $1,000,000 addition now nearing completion.

Under the unusual "Saving Plan" inaugurated by Walter E. Olson, president, 23 years ago, savings are encouraged on a safe, systematic basis and employees feel they have a real interest in the continued growth and prosperity of the organization.

Interest is paid on employee investments July 1st and January 1st. On the latter date, a check for the full amount of principal and interest is given each employee, which may be re-invested in the company the next day.

"Olson employees have prospered and I am certain that no where can you find a more loyal, steady group of workers who appreciate the fact that we can borrow money at much less than 6 per cent," said Mr. Olson.

Orient Movie Shown Sunday

Rev. Meredith Davis, missionary for the Voice of China and Asia, will conduct services at the Open Bible Church of Lakeside Sunday, June 10. He will show a film of life in the Orient.

The midweek Bible Study group has been changed from Tuesday to Wednesday evening.

Rev. Audrey Ashburn, assistant pastor, is moving to Lakeside so he can assist the pastor Rev. M. O. Brown, in the work of the church.

The Grossmont PTA executive board wil have a pot luck supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Anderson, Eucalyptus Rd. and Pine Rd., Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Conrad are spending the week at the Shrine Camp, Mt. Laguna. Their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crabb, joined them Tuesday for the holiday.

Barbara Bond Gets Nursing Shcolarship

Miss Barbara Bond of Fletcher Hills will receive a nurse's scholarship from Lakeside Woman's club, according to an announcement this week at installation ceremonies.

Mrs. Frank T. Zeglis was installed president. Mrs. George Miller was the installing officer.

Mrs. Herbert Rawlings, vice president; Mrs. W. E. Phillips, secretary; Miss Gertrude Raaka corresponding secretary; Mrs. Douglas Biggs, treasurer; Mrs. George Miller, Mrs. Marie Marshall and Mrs. Hugh Supolt, directors.

Register For Swim Instruction

Registration begins Friday for a three-month program of free swimming lessons for boys and girls conducted by the Park and Recreation Department at the city's two swimming pools during the summer vacation.

The program of instruction for the price of admission to the pool begins June 18 at munincipal pool in Balboa Park and June 10 at Mission Beach plunge. Another program, requiring no registration, will be held during the summer at Asher Cove in Mission Bay.

Instruction in the classes starts two weeks earlier this year, as there will not be the usual "Learn to Swim" Campaign.

Age range at Mission Beach plunge will be five through 16 and at munincipal seven through 17. Boys and girls will have separate classes, and each child will have a half hour of instruction per week.

All registrations will be handled through the city acquatic offices

Dr. H.Ball Gets Grant For Study

Announcement ofa grant of $4,000 to Dr. Howard A. Ball of San Diego to continue cancer research started last year was made today by officials of the California Division, American Cancer Society. These funds are administered through the San Diego Zoological Society.

During 1955, Dr. Ball, who has laboratories in the Medical-Dental Building, succeeding in retarding the growth of malignant tumors in rats with injections of a modified sugar which "blocks" the use of natural sugar by the tumor cells. Within the next few days will start a new series of experiments which will utilize insulin in the injections, he said.

"We hope insulin will make the injections of modified sugar more effective in retarding the growth of cancer by aiding its entry into the tumor cells," Dr. Ball said.

In 1955 the California Division granted Dr. Ball $2,300 which paid part of the cost of the research. Some of this year's additional funds for the new experiments in the fight against cancer were contributed by San Diego County residents in re[illegible] Cancer Crusade.

Show, Rodeo By Marines For Relief

Not content with offering the public two afternoons of competitive riding, some of the finest professional riding acts in the Southland, and a carnival midway, Camp Pendleton rodeo officials have also planned an evening of entertainment for late-stayers at the rodeo grounds.

Shortly after the conclusion of the riding events on both Saturday and Sunday, June 9 and 10, five acts from the recently completed First Marine Division talent show will entertain in the carnival area.

Acts scheduled to appear include the Tranquells, a male singing group, the Melody Mustangs, Western musical group, the Two Flames a drum and piano duo who were winners of the talent show, the Stringbusters, Western string band, and the Harmonicat. The first three have appeared on Marines in Review, Camp Pendleton's network radio show.

The first half of the Pony League play will be over June 9 and so far some pretty exciting games have been played. A good example of this is the game played Saturday, June 2, in which the league leading Worden Colts lost a closie to the Farm Bureau 3 to 2. It took an extra inning to decide the game.

There are many promising and outstanding players in the Lakeside Pony League. As of June 2 here are the leading hitters, pitchers and league standings:

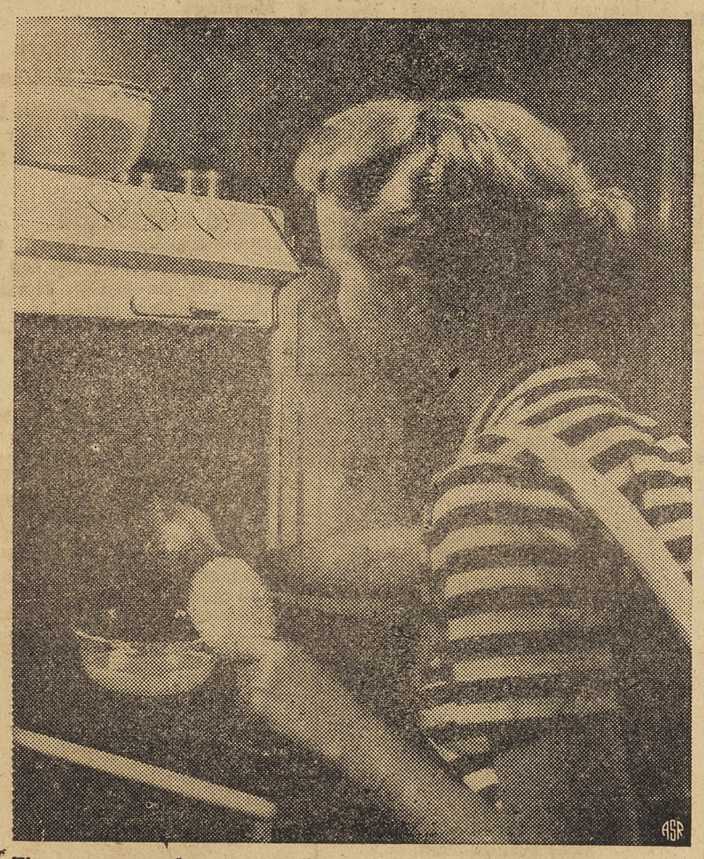
A Clean Stove Saves Fuel



The easy way to clean an oven. Leave a bowl of soapy water and ammonia in the oven overnight with the door shut tight. Next morning, suds the interior with a stiff brush. Dirt and grease wash off easily, thanks to pre-softening.

These are days of hearty meals and much home entertainment—and time to check the efficiency of your kitchen to save you time and money. A good start is the kitchen range.

Sputtering burners and smoky ovens are signs of trouble and wasted fuel. A good rule to follow is "a clean stove cooks better, saves fuel and lasts longer." But don't make a chore of it. Keep your stove in working order. Like the proverbial "stitch-in-time," constant care saves hours of hard labor.

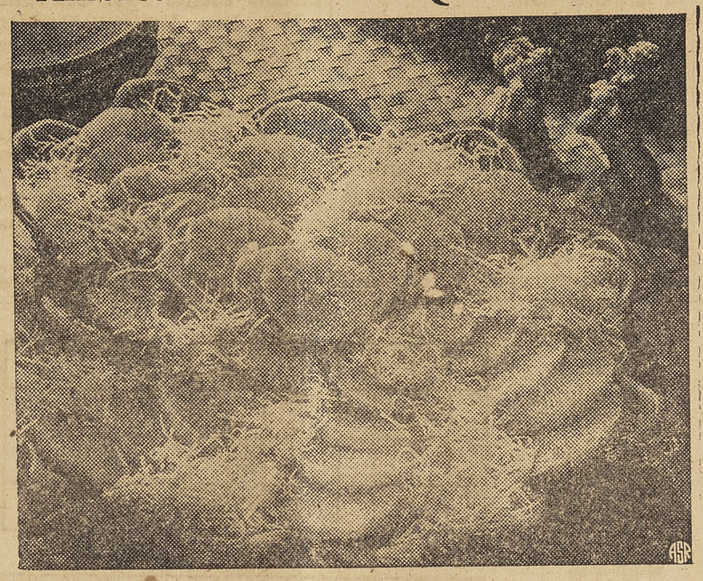
Wipe the top and burners with a soapy cloth after each use, but let the stove cool first. Enamel may crack if water is applied while hot. However, wipe up spillovers at once with a DRY cloth or paper towel, lest they leave permanent stains. Follow with soap and water when the stove has cooled.

To keep carbon from jamming the pilot light, first turn it off; then scrub the housing with a soft wire brush and wash with a soapy cloth. Make sure surrounding surfaces are completely dry before you relight it, and that connections are "seated" correctly.

Pour grease off the broiler while it is still warm, but let it cool before you soak and scrub it in hot soapsuds. Rub mineral oil on the racks occasionally and they'll resist rust better and longer.

Treat the deep well cooker as you would any aluminum kettle. Lift it out and scrub with hot soapsuds, particularly along the outer edges. Non-insulated covers can be tub-washed, but insulated covers should just be wiped clean with a damp cloth.

Ambrosia—Delectable Quick Dessert



Looking for a refreshing dessert to complete a "cool-off" dinner on the patio or back porch? Then try the casual California way of serving ambrosia for dessert. A large bowl of ice cold orange slices with mounds of coconut sprinkled here and there, makes one of the quickest and most satisfying desserts you've ever dreamed of.

Before dinner, peel and slice the oranges into cartwheel shapes, allowing one large orange for each person. California valencia oranges are ideal for this dish because they're practically seedless and have a wonderful, fresh juicy flavor. Arrange the slices on a large low bowl or plate, sprinkling coconut between each row of citrus. Put the bowl in the refrigerator to chill while you're eating dinner. Then bring it out at dessert time for the grand finale of an outdoor meal. Each person can help himself, or if you prefer, you can serve at the table.

As a variation of this ambrosia, try it with slices of bananas or strawberries between each orange slice. Or to make it seem even more refreshing, tuck in several sprigs of fresh mint.

Color Coordination Can Be Perfect

Time was when a homemaker approached redecorating with fear and trembling. Could she get the paint colors she wanted for her rooms? It was a constant struggle! Today, thanks to progressive steps made by the paint industry, perfect colors can be used every time. Selection is made from master color guides that tell exactly what color she will get.

Now, too, one can be assured of having matching colors in both dull and lustrous finishes. For example, there's a new satin finish enamel called Satinhide that has a low lustre semi-gloss, ideal for use on walls as well as woodwork. It has a companion coating, rubber-ized Wallhide, that dries to a low sheen finish. So the two can, if desired, be used in the same room. They'll match perfectly. Or the satin finish can be used alone on walls in kitchens or baths, matching or contrasting harmoniously with draperies or other room furnishings.

The Master Color Guide, arranged in decks, offers over 150 colors for choice and the colors are grouped according to color families rather than graduated tones of the spectrum, so that coordinating colors is simplified. One merely selects the dominant hue in the room to be decorated. Usually this is the color of the walls or the floor covering. When the basic color is selected, there is a table of suggested harmonizing hues which makes the companion color selections easy. By arranging the recommended harmony colors on the guide with the dominant color chosen, the complete color arrangement of the room appears instantly. You can't miss, these modern days!

LAFF OF THE WEEK

"I hope they won't want one of those child marriages . . I simply haven't room to be a grandmother."

NORMAN DAWSON, right, prominent San Diego County gem collector, and his son, Bobbie 8, examine gem material found recently in the famed Fargo Mine, at Pala. These gems will be part of the nearly $5,000,000 worth of precious and semi-precious stones to be shown in the National Gem and Mineral Show in Balboa Park's Electric Building, July 17, 18, and 19.

Grit Self-Feeder

It takes just a few minutes to make this handy grit, or oyster shell self feeder for poultry. All you need is a nail keg and a tin can. Saw three inches off the bottom end of one stave of the keg for the outlet. Then, use a one-pound coffee can for the feed trough. Cut this down the seam—then back along the bottom three inches. Then bend the sides out to form "wings." Finally, shape the scoop-like bottom of the can so it fits into the keg opening, tack the "wings" to the keg, and you have a feeder!

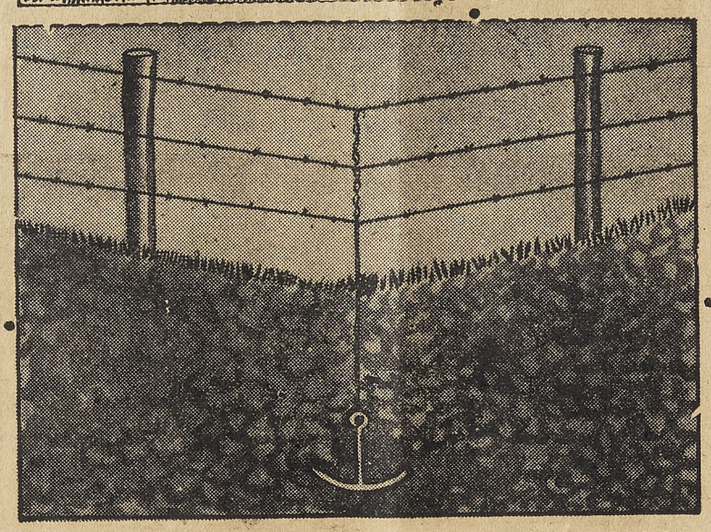
MASTER KEY TO ALL FREEDOMS



MAKE A FENCE ANCHOR, using old rake or cultivator wheel, by cutting off spoke at the hub and making loop on end. Dig a hole, bury anchor. A wire tied to fence and to loop in anchor holds fence securely in place in hollow.

Headed For Vacation

Did you ever see a little girl who didn't want to look pretty? We haven't! Girls are style conscious at a very early age.

To satisfy this desire for fashion with no sacrifice to comfort, Katherine Potter who directs the beauty and grooming department for Procter and Gamble, has designed some vacation hairdos for the sub-deb set. All are designed for coolness. All use rubber bands to hold them in place, and flowers and ribbons add the pretty touch.

Cool and saucy is the pony-do. Brush the back hair to the crown, then the front hair. Brush and brush until all hair is smooth, then bind it with a rubber band. This style will stay neat all day through vigorous play.

Part heavy hair from crown to nape. Gather each side section of hair to spot just above ear and fasten with a rubber band, then cover band with flowers or ribbons. Notice how the bangs are cut back beyond the hairline. This gives more width to forehead, more depth to eyes.

Mothers should remember too that clean hair is cool hair. Frequent shampooing is necessary during the vacation months when out-door play allows extra dust and perspiration to collect on the scalp and hair. A new type of detergent shampoo called Shasta is especially good for children because it is a cream and will not run when applied to the hair. Also it lathers well in all kinds of water.

Very fine hair can be kept free of tangles if it is styled close to the head. Here, the hair is parted on the side and diagonally down the back. Each side section is brushed tight to a spot back from the face, but in line with the temple where it is bound with a rubber band. The ends can be straight or curled.

Braids are glamorous, particularly when they are tied with fresh stiff ribbons, and when the hair ends are curled. Be sure to keep parts straight. Redo them every day.

MAYOR McGUP By John Jarvis

THIS IS A BAD FIRE, MAYOR. I'M GOING TO CALL THE FIRE DEPARTMENT FROM ELBOWVILLE AND ASK FOR HELP.
ELBOWVILLE IS 26 MILES FROM HERE! OUR TOWN WOULD BE IN ASHES BEFORE THEY GOT HERE!

SUNDOWN ON THE PACIFIC SHORE

A novel about the Great West

BY RENAN PREVOST

Copyright by Renan Prevost, May 1955 All rights reserved

PREFACE

All thru the West there are Ghost Towns. Mostly in the region of the gold mines, of the wild, reckless days of 1848 and after. There are ruins of buildings and etc., which have a story, of the days,- of glory and easy wealth for some men; and dissappointment and tragic passing for other men.

About every city there are happenings of the past which are not always recorded; some men leave great names for their accomplishments, and land marks are named after them such as Parks, Streets and Schools. Also there are men, the workers who have "done the work" who are usually forgotten, with their passing on from this world. This story is about these men of great courage, supreme courage. Many of them arrived here without funds, and so gainful employment was necessary and that was work- hard work. Work not in line with their skill in a trade or profession.

Ghost towns have their story. So stories exist about buildings, water works, factories, railroads and other endeavors concerned with the earning of a livehood. These stories become interesting, because they portray a life during the days of the past,almost forgotten. Great buildings or public ufilities are usually known by the name of the man or corporation which caused the construction. Very seldom is any credit given to an architect, or the men who actually did the work. These were the men-"the brains" who were responsible for the erection of the structure or etc. And so this novel is about those "brains" and how they came West and what their life was like.

There are certain things effecting the economic welfare of men, which cause them to migrate. Generally it is promise of better living conditions or opportunities of easy attainment of wealth, thru land booms, new agricultural crops such as rare fruits, a better livable climate,as an aid to regain health;or as in the case of the colonization of this great country- an escape from persecution or oppression.

Men have been traveling to the West for generations, so we travel West with our characters, starting in 1880.

AUTHOR'S NOTE

Any similarity of names or places is merely co-incidental. All characters, dates and places are imaginary. The author has endeavored to use names of his own invention. If by chance the name of a living, or deceased person, or relative has been used, or any similarity thereof; the author offers apologies, for an unavoidable accident, which sometimes happens.

The author wishes to acknowledge, with thanks and sincere appreciation, the help that many old residents of the locale have supplied. Much of the material used has been obtained during many years of taking notes. Many of the yarns, stories and hearsay have been combined to make this novel.

A story partly fiction, fancy, fact, hearsay and joshing.

CHAPTER TWENTY

A Smart Man Obtains River Land.
The New Italian Orange Peddler.
Jerry In Florida; Purchases Lemon Trees.
Stayson Wants Old Home Back.
The Home in the Country.

"Maybe you would like a good time tonight?"

"No! No, me save money for to buy farm. No. No. Good bye," answered Tony.

"Oranges! Oranges! Bananas," and he proceeded up the street, on with the sales.

It was now a month since the time Jerry went to Florida to get some lemon trees. Finally a telegram came for Twitcher.

"Purchasd today one thosuand lemon trees for five hundred dollars. Deposit to my account today. Will arrive home in about three weeks. Tell my wife. Jerry Todd."

"Hello, Mr. Twitcher. My name is Laverodeux. I have come to see if you might know where I may find some work. I have a family, some children now working a little, but that is not enough.".

"What kind of work do you want, my friend?" he asked.

"I will do anything. Rosita, my wife, is sick, so I must now work harder to pay doctor bills."

"There is going to be some new orchard work in the country, planting lemon trees. Maybe you could work there," suggested Twitcher.

"No, I maybe better work in the city."

"Sorry, that is all I know about right now."

"Thanks a lot, anyhow. Good bye."

Laverodeux. That was a familiar name. Twitcher knew of a family by that name in Massachusetts. He wrote that on a card and under the desk glass it was put. "Laverodeux." next to "I sell what people want," also a card, "If you want water, go where water is."

"Chug, chug, bang," and black exhaust smoke easily announced the arrival of Madam Fournier to the Twitcher real estate office. Chauffeur Tom was driving.

"Hello, Bud," was her usual greeting to Twitcher.

"Don't call me 'Bub.' That's one name I don't like, and if you continue to call me that I request you don't come here anymore. I don't like that greeting and I am not a 'Bub.' That greeting is out of place here. I don't mind doing business with you because you are frank and plain spoken, but that name is uncalled for here. Do I make myself understood?"

"Yes, and I apologize, really I am sorry," said Madam.

"What I came for is that I need some hired help. A man to work on the lawn and shrubbery, and handy man, and a kitchen girl, et cetera," said the madam.

"Well, maybe I can help you. See that man there? He just asked for work. Go see him," replied Twitcher, pointing out the previous visitor, walking dejectedly down the street.

So Mr. Laverodeux was hired to work as handy man. This work he liked. The pay was good, and the job was within easy walking distance from his home.

In New Town no one man could ever have himself an empire or kingdom. The whole place was alive with people who have wealth. People who did not have to ask employment. How different it was than other places in the near Middle West, where a family or group of families rule the town. New Town never was like that, or ever would be.

This is the Great West, and it has not been many years since the "Sanish Dons" and their life of ease was the life of the land. Then came the Gringo, a white man was has not learned or become accustomed to the Mexican way of life; to eating chili contained foods; or the manana characteristices.

PART FOUR

Twitcher then read "The Story of the Old Home in the Country," a manuscript which someone had given to him. It was The Story of the House in the Wildwood Glen, off and up the canyon of desolate hillsides of scrub brush two to three feet tall and with huge granite boulders protruding here and there. This is the way to the musical home in wildwood.

On coming to the house we can see tall cedars, pine and spruce trees, not native to the terrain, to be sure, but here they were growing in all splendor, a splendor emblamatic of the man who planted them.

Yes, any man who planted trees is truly a fine man and good of heart. There is something fine and majestic about these trees. quietly swaying their pinnical tops in the breeze, as if proudly welcoming us toward the house, or houses, because there were two, old now, very old, possibly not occupied for a quarter of a century, it seemed to us.

The main house, or house of the musician, a pianist, a large house, brown in color, the natural color of old wood, a two story house with large windows, bay windows in front shaded by a moderate porch, special construction, made of two by twelve inch planks, smooth, but the edges rounded or beveled off and a one by three piece of wood nailed over bevel to connect the planks together. These had the appearance or similarity of giant oragn pipes, and extended from the foundations to the roof, where the setting sun at dusk cast a modified light on them, they appeared as many giant organ pipes. In the moonlight when music was coming from inside the organ-like, effect was most natural. The musician could play the grand piano, somewhat organic-like by sustaining deep bass tones through certain passages of the music especially in religious music.

As we came to the house we thought we heard music—Wagnerian opera music, strange though, there was no one there. Yet it seemed we could hear a Tannhauser march, maybe it was just the wind blowing through the trees.

No one seemed to live here, the house was furnished and clean, a huge grand piano in the parlor. We entered the door creaked and here was a home, just as someone departed from it years past. We did not sit down, just stared at the massive elegance of the furnishings. Who had lived here? What was their life like? Music came from that piano, soft, tinkling strings; maybe a mouse on the strings.

We closed the door on a musical heaven and went out, to be me by a real old man, very old, an exceedingly pleasant fellow, with a very welcome smile. He lived in the other house built the same style as the main house, but generally in all respects much smaller. The old fellow was the only person now living of the group that settled here. Many years ago a famous pianist lived here, he told us, a nature lover, so trees were planted, watered for many years and cared for as if they were rare plants. They were rare, but trees. The musician used to say he liked trees, tall trees, because they waved a welcome which could be seen from afar. He was a kindly man, inherited a fortune and spent it on gracious living for himself and wife and their help. Never wasting any funds, but living as a gentleman. He asked that none of the main part of the property be sold while any of the group were alive. The old care taker was the last, now nearing one hundred years old.

We asked about the music which seemed to come from from the main house. Yes, he said, he heard it almost nightly, he could remember those evening concerts. The musician would play every evening, but liked to live here away from the big cities and all that they represented in the hurry of life and unnatural living, a great musician he surely was.

Up the hillside on a small mesa was a cemetery, and we were told that all who lived here were buried there, resting in peace and ever hearing the gentle breeze blowing through the trees. Nature's music eternal.

It had been a busy day at the Twitcher real estate office. First it was water, then other people came with their troubles. The happiest man of all was the orange peddler. Twitcher thought of them all; but mostly of what had been said about water.

He knew that New Town must have a supply of good water, but what he could not understand was the strained feelings between the "Dads" of the Town and the people of the back country. There was a feeling of who gets the water. The Town claimed it all, and the folks of the back country exclaimed, "just you try and get it, and see what happens." Yet there was plenty of water for all, only it must be stored in lakes behind man constructed dams. Instead of co-operation to conserve the water, there was fighting to see who would not get the water. Twitcher could not understand such a set-up. Water supply mutual companies were formed to install pumping plants, or construct dams, but action was stopped by Court litigation by the opposing parties. Water could not be taken out of one drainage basin, and put into another basin, because it would affect the rights of others further down the river basins . Such a feeling, and for neighbors to have, was not right.

Julia Stayson and Jim Cassidy had a meeting in the reading room of the Town Library most every Saturday afternoon. Should Julia not be there, on some occasions, Jim know it could not be avoided. Sometimes her father made certain demands that would make the meeting impossible. The meeting was always nice, and how happy they appeared together.

Julia would tell Jim about the men, whom her father had over to their home for Sunday evening dinner. Men, which he had picked as suitors for his oldest daughter. Many of them old enough to be her father, and some disgustingly crude. Especially was she mad, because of the way a certain man had sized her up and down. She could sense that the man had experienced all the pleasures of life, with many women. He tried to make friends with her, but there was no chance. When the guest had gone, her father would always ask what she thought of the visitor. That man was described as a "worn out parlor sofer lizard; a has-been." All that she told Jim, who laughed at the way her father was trying his best to make a match for the girl. Her father would not have a young man, a maybe desirable man; no, it was always some "old soak." Several times she would tell her father that the visitor was "too old and too cold." And how it gave the father the "creeps." That expression was to the point, and he did not like it.

She wanted Jim, and only Jim. She had told her father that many times. But so far as he was concerned, no daughter of his was going to marry a saloon keeper's son, and that was his determination. However, soon Julia would be twenty-one years of age, then he would see what she wanted.

LOVE - INTRIGUE - COMEDY

A first rate tourist attraction must be original, entertaining, enjoyable and it must be seen only in one place Tourists travel the world over to see unusual attractions. "Serafina" and "Stars in the West" can be annual attractions for San Diego. There has never been anything offered in San Diego, to compare with the possibilties of these Historical Operettas, excepting, the two great Expositions -1915 and 1935, in our wonderful Balboa Park.

Why we offer these Operettas - The presentation of stage shows and etc., which have been produced for years, elsewhere, does not create prime tourist attractions of merit, for San Diego. Because as a rule tourists do not travel far to see stage shows; which can be seen at home or nearby.

Or to hear music which is regularly used on the radio or on records for home playing. All of which; although, said shows and music are acceptable for amusement; but, they are in reality "common stuff" and seldom attract the well informed and enlightened tourist, seeking the unusual.

.A tourist attaction of supreme merit is the Historical Operetta. And produced annually in a Civic Theatre located admist the fine buildings of Balboa Park, which is world famous and the center of culture of San Diego. We have the Russ Auditorium which will suffice until a Civic Theatre can be provided, We have the talent and the most enjoyable operetta — "SERAFINA"

These Operettas are new, with appeal unlike the over-played stage presentations of the past years.

So,- We offer these original Operettas, they can be tourist attractions unsurpassed; because they have not been produced elsewhere, most of the music has not been published, or offered for public use. Here are two historical Operettas, in all that it implies, about our San Diego.

The historical facts presented in the Operettas are such as has never heretofore been presented.

PALOMAR OBSERVATORY

Palomar Observatory, one of the greatest scientific achievements in modern history, is located in San Diego's nearby back country. It is the home of the world's largest camera, which instrument will permit the moon to be photographed as if it were but 28 miles distant.

Ideal climatic conditions are essential to the successful operation of this observatory. After years of searching for a location offering clear atmosphereic conditions throughout the year, officials selected Palomar Mountain.

On the site also will be found two other observatories, one is a reflecting telescope situated atop Palomar Mountain 68 miles northeast of San Diego via Escondido and U. S. Highway 395. Turning east at Escondido, the road signs are clearly marked.

Navy Relief Needed Here, For Sure!

Glad to have you aboard?- The time-honored Marine Corps situation doesn't seem to be shared by this Marine-turned-cowboy and his mount, a very determined Brahma bull. This scene, from last year's Navy Relief Rodeo Carnival, will be enacted many times over June 9 and 10 at Camp Pendleton when amateur cowboys. Marines and sailors the other 363 days of the year, pit their skill against some of the West's orneriest stock. The two-day rodeo, free to the public, is an annual event conducted in conjunction with a carnival to raise money for the Camp Pendleton auxiliary of the Navy Relief Society.
